Mr. W. A. Childrens moved that the respect of the committee be adopted.

Mr. W. D. Cheveland asked if this report was addressed to the legislature. Upon hering advised that it was, he said he thought this was unwire as we ought to settle our inflerences at home. He had not devoted withchent attaching to the charter to say whether or not the report was a wise one. Some of its propositions he favored. All might be advantageous, but he thought it had policy at this late day to reopen this smiler native. Citizens were livited in advance to make surgestions as to charter chances and it was tather his ends to course in and attempt to remodel the entire work. He thought it well that instead of going direct to the legislature with this report, a committee thould be appointed to confer with the city conneil. They had framed the charter with our knowledge and consent and without any project on our part, hence the should be shown the courtery of a conference.

bit. Mover said this question of a char-

city council but the people were behind this movement. No half dozen men should be permitted to manipulate such as important matter as a city charter. Taking a haw of 50 deep people. The people were most interested in the dasaring of $250,000 in backs as if the matter and in the council non the active said the matter as a council most be blushess became in this matter. He recarded the charter as a monetroody. It proposed to take in a little city that he had laid out East Houston, and awallow it like an estorus. It proposed that he should resurvey his success in this addition and donate the streets to the city. There was no newer on earth that could make him do this. How the framers of the charter got it into their heads that they could do this was more than he could understand, but the charter would not pass, there were not fools enough in the legislature for this. The question was then called on the mostion to adopt the report.
